

paper
nations

Call for channel partners

Calling writers, organisations, companies, and more!

Audience stream

Do you want to help make Writing for All a success? Then why not become one of our Channel Partners?

What is Writing for All?

Paper Nations' Writing for All is a new programme that provides support for writers through access to mentors, events, workshops, industry, and much more. We want writing to be accessible to everyone, no matter their age, experience, background or interests. Most of our programme is delivered in South-West England. We also run online platforms and twin with regions around the world that share this vision.

What are we looking for?

People and organisations to work with us to provide opportunities for writers to develop or showcase their work. We are looking for local, national and international channel partners.

To make a lasting change, we need help from everyone. We need connections with all parts of the writing community to ensure that our work really is Writing for All and not Writing for Some.

Partners may be writers or educators with established projects, educational charities or community groups, industry creatives, publishers, producers, agents, promoters, booksellers, industry organisations, venues or companies. Most importantly, partners share Writing for All's vision of creating an inclusive writing ecology.

What will the channel partners do?

Organisations and individuals will collaborate with us to provide a platform for writers, for example facilitating new links between existing writing projects, providing links to the publishing and touring industries, nurturing local writers, developing touring opportunities, or co-producing events.

Partnerships will take on many forms and will be tailored to each individual or organisation. More information on partnerships as well as past channel partners are available on our website. There is no direct funding for becoming a channel partner - the idea is that we pool our resources and funds so we can do more together.

Why become a channel partner?

Becoming a channel partner will enable you to make a difference, share your expertise and contribute to the success of Writing for All. You will gain experience of working on a major Arts Council England-funded project, supporting and nurturing the growth of the writing ecology in the South-West. You will have the opportunity to network with local and national writing representatives, develop your own professional experience, and be a part of making writing more accessible to everyone.

Why become a channel partner?

Becoming a channel partner will give you experience of working on a major Arts Council England-funded project, supporting and nurturing the growth of the writing ecology in the South West. You will have the opportunity to network with local and national writing representatives, develop your own professional experience, and be a part of making writing more accessible to everyone.

What next?

If you think that together we can make a difference, simply fill out an Expression of Interest form, downloadable from our website, by midnight on Friday 6th September 2019. We will then be in touch.